NAIA

The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) is a completely autonomous association, currently administering programs of intercollegiate athletics to nearly 500 fully accredited colleges and universities of moderate enrollment. The fundamental tenet of the NAIA is that intercollegiate athletics is an integral part of the total educational program of the institution. This belief is strongly reflected in the governing documents, activities, and organizational structure of the association.

The NAIA is governed by two bodies. The Council of Presidents, composed of one president from each district, is responsible for fiscal matters, academic standards and supervision of the national staff. The 10-person National Executive Committee, elected by membership, is responsible for organizing championship events and overseeing the committees and associations. The executive director conducts the day-to-day operation of the National Office, headquartered in Kansas City, Missouri. A full time staff of 22 serves the membership at the national level.

The district is the basic unit of the NAIA. The association is organized into 32 geographical districts spread throughout the 50 states and a part of Canada. Each district is governed by a district executive committee, headed by the district chair. The district executive committee administers district playoff events, the champions of which qualify to compete in NAIA area and national championship competition.

Eligibility rules within the NAIA govern all play in all sports recognized by the association.

CFA

The Columbia Football Association begins its sixth season in 1990. Called the Columbia Football League when it was formed in 1985, the loop changed that title in 1988 to the CFA. The Northern and Southern Divisions of the old CFL became known as the Mount Rainier and Mount Hood Leagues, respectively.

Also in 1988, all 14 members of the CFA moved to Division II of the NAIA. Prior to that, eight of the league's schools were in Division I and six in Division II.

The reason for all schools going into the same classification was that under NAIA guidelines established in 1987, the loop would have the same number of national playoff berths available as when it had schools in both divisions. And, it would be a much more competitive situation for those schools reaching the playoffs.

Both league champions receive an automatic berth into the national playoffs. Other league schools can make the playoffs if they are ranked high enough in the final regular season national poll.

Two years ago, the NAIA expanded its football playoff format to 16 teams in both divisions. Automatic berths are awarded to the champions of NAIA football conferences and the field is filled by the next highest-ranked teams in the final regular season polls.

The members of the Mount Rainier League are Pacific Lutheran, Central Washington, Linfield, Puget Sound, Simon Fraser, Whitworth and Western Washington. Members of the Mount Hood League are Eastern Oregon, Lewis & Clark, Pacific, Oregon Tech, Southern Oregon, Western Oregon and Willamette.

WESTERN FEATURE: SOLARDIARY

by Carole Wiedmeyer, WWU Public Information Office

Through blazing heat and torrential thundershowers, past factories, peanut fields and peaceful pastures of Kentucky bluegrass, Western's Viking XX solar car took on the competition of 31 other schools and triumphed with a solid second-place finish in July's GM Sunrayce.

When the 11-day, 1,650-mile race was over, the Vikings were behind the University of Michigan by only an hour and 20 minutes — having closed a nearly three-hour gap earlier in the race — with third-place University of Maryland trailing by six hours.

Now, it's on to Australia in November for the World Solar Challenge. But before taking on the solar-car world, Western's team can reflect on the trip from Orlando to the GM Technical Center in Warren, Michigan, outside Detroit.

The risk of driving slow, spaceship-shaped cars in regular traffic proved to be minimal. The race's one mishap occurred when a passing pickup truck collided with the University of Waterloo's car, which went briefly airborne and landed in a ditch.

Fortunately, there were no injuries and the car was repairable.

Western Michigan University's vehicle was pulled over in Indianapolis by a police officer, who had not been informed about the race, simply for being unusual.

The Vikings faced nothing worse than flat tires and gusty winds. They became adept at changing the former — their record was two minutes — and learning to live with the latter.

Western's team actually had more trouble with support vehicles than with the Viking XX. One rented motor home broke down twice. The second time, team members temporarily replaced its bad battery with a spare for the solar car, much to the chagrin of Michael Seal, head of Western's Vehicle Research Institute (VRI) and the team's faculty adviser.

Like Viking XX, each futuristic car was accompanied by a gas-guzzling entourage that included a lead van and a chase van, as well as several support vehicles of varying sizes. Leader Michigan's caravan cast a large shadow with a complete workshop aboard a customized tractor trailer. The Viking team brought along spare parts and repair equipment in a U-haul trailer and rented truck.

The team's biggest pre-race fear — failure of its lightweight silver-zinc batteries — fortunately never materialized. The replacement lead-acid batteries would have added significant weight to the car, cutting its speed.

Of course, in solar car racing, speed is a relative term.

The Viking XX's optimum speed in the near-constant rain during the first days of the Sunrayce was a less-than-meteoric 17 mph. Average speeds overall were about 25 mph. It clocked its top speed for the race — 52 mph — in the sunny, windless conditions on the home stretch through the Michigan countryside.

Western did, however, set a track record for a solar-powered car at the Indianapolis Speedway, 46.15 mph.

The combination of a slow pace and high stakes made for a seesaw emotional climate as the days wore on and the competition heated up. High-90's temperatures through much of the race tested tempers and the ability to stay constantly alert.

But the heat and humidity didn't dampen spectators' enthusiasm for the project one bit. Thousands of well-wishers lined country roads in lawn chairs, waving flags, with cameras and video cassette recorders ready to capture the spectacle on film. Near Shelbyville, Indiana, an unidentified woman held up a sign that said: "I am a WWU alum."

The race was an especially big hit with the very young and the old. Said one senior citizen: "This is the biggest thing to come to town since Barry Goldwater."

Team captain Bill Lingenfelter learned to talk to the media, including ESPN and the "Today Show" on a live remote. Driver Keith Kaplan, a freshman last year, celebrated his 18th birthday on day four of the race in Haleyville, Alabama, by "'surfing" on an inflatable alligator in a fairgrounds pool. Driver Sage McCallum, who is also the team's chief fund-raiser, signed autographs for worshipful youth at GM's new Saturn plant in Spring Hill, Tennessee.

Others made less glamorous contributions. John Watt, 57, of Bellingham, got a motor-oil shower while servicing a malfunctioning motor home. Stan Miller, 23; Randy Weaver, 24, and Paul Dickerson, 22, worked long hours and skipped dinner the night before the race began to help Arizona State University bring its car to qualifying standards.

Western was cited many times during the event for upholding the "spirit of the race" and lending a hand to other teams. By the last day — with clean laundry at a premium and support mounting for underdog Western — WWU solar car T-shirts were on the backs of rival teams everywhere.

One source of enthusiasm for Viking XX among its competitors was its radical design: It was one of only three two-person vehicles in the race and departed from the many vehicles patterned on the GM Sunraycer which won the World Solar Challenge in Australia three years ago.

"It's risky to take the untraveled path in racing," VRI Director Seal says. "Usually it doesn't profit. Placing second shows that our unique design was correct."

And the risky path now leads to an international race Down Under.

Viking XX needs your push

Western's solar car, Viking XX, needs the help of alumni and friends to be competitive in Australia this November during the World Solar Challenge. By placing second in the GM Sunrayce, Western receives from the motor giant sufficient funds to transport the vehicle by sea and provide some accommodations for seven team members and one faculty adviser, Dr. Michael Seal, Vehicle Research Institute Director.

Seal says Western needs 14 team members to be competitive during the rugged race through the Outback and is seeking private support for airfare and living expenses for the additional seven not financed by GM.

He estimates Western must raise $4,000 to pay airfare and living expenses for each additional team member. But, as fund- raiser Sage McCallum says, "we'll take every dollar people are willing to give. They add up, one by one, to what we need for Australia."

Contributions are tax deductible and may be sent to the Western Foundation (with Solar Car or Viking XX clearly marked on the check), WWU, Bellingham, WA 98225. For more information about how you might help, please contact the Vehicle Research Institute at 676-3045.

1989 REVIEW: WESTERN JOINS NORTHWEST'S GRID ELITE

With its numerous record-setting team and individual performances, the 1989 season became the year that Western established itself as one of the elite schools in the Columbia Football Association.

Led by senior running back Scott Lohr and senior free safety Kelly Susee, the Vikings posted a 7-2 record, their best since 1951, were ranked 21st in the final NAIA Division II National poll and second in the Northwest small college poll, and set or tied 20 school records. Western tied for third place in the Mount Rainier League of the CFA with a 4-2 mark.

The Vikings capped their season by defeating nationally-ranked Linfield, 27-24. It was the Wildcats' first league loss on their home field since 1976.

Earlier in the campaign, Western lost by only six points, 21-15, to Central Washington, which reached the semifinals of the national playoffs, before a record home crowd of 5,673.

"For us to make a statement and move up, we had to beat one of the 'big three' (Linfield, Pacific Lutheran and Central)," said head coach Rob Smith, who was named MRL Coach of the Year. "A 6-3 season would have been good, but there still would have been some unfinished business. The win over Linfield allowed us to make a statement."

Lohr was an honorable mention NAIA All-American, first-team Little all-Northwest and unanimous first-team all-CFA selection. He set school single-season records for rushing yards (1,395) and scoring (120 points on 20 touchdowns), getting at least one touchdown in every game. He also became Western's career scoring leader with 266 points, tied the school record of four touchdowns in a game twice, and became the only Viking to have a pair of 200-yard rushing games, including a school-record 243 against Puget Sound. Lohr ranked third nationally in scoring and fifth in rushing.

"Scott was a blue-collar runner," Smith said. "He was a great in-traffic runner who went up field all the time. He worked hard for the type of year he had and was deserving of it."

Despite Lohr's spectacular statistics, the Vikings' spread offense was balanced. Western had a school-record 4,026 yards to rank ninth nationally at 447.3 yards a game, racking up 2,348 yards through the air and 1,678 on the ground.

Senior quarterback Kirk Kriskovich, a second-team all-CFA pick, returned after sitting out the last two seasons to throw for 2,229 yards and a school-record 18 touchdowns, becoming Western's all-time passing leader with 5,503 yards.

"It was a very solid offensive performance from game one to the end of the season," Smith said, pointing out the offensive line deserved much of the credit. "There wasn't much pressure on our quarterbacks and we were able to get our run game going."

Seniors Mike Carrington and Kirk Schneider led the receiving corps, both earning second-team all-league honors. Carrington, a wide receiver, had 42 receptions for 589 yards and 5 touchdowns. Schneider, a 6-foot-4, 235-pound tight end, had 38 catches for 472 yards and tied a school record with 8 TDs.

Anchoring the offensive line was first-team all-CFA and Little all-Northwest junior center Kevin Beason.

"At the beginning of the season, our offensive coaches set some goals," Smith said. "One was to average 425 yards a game. At the time, I thought, 'It's a nice goal, but is it realistic?' We did it, which was a credit to our coaches, and our players and how hard they worked and the time they put in."

The offense scored 40 points or better on five occasions, scoring a Western-best 313, but the defense also did well, allowing an average of 293.9 yards to rank second in the 14-team CFA. The Vikings held opponents under 10 points in three contests and recorded 27 quarterback sacks.

"At times, our defense played above itself," said Smith. "It goes back to work ethic and attitude. I felt we'd be good, but we did things during the year that surprised even me."

The defense was led by a fast, hard-hitting secondary that set an NAIA single-game record by holding Central Washington to minus-5 yards passing. All four earned all-league honors.

"I don't think any team in the league had the quality of athletes in the secondary we had," Smith said.

Susee led the team in interceptions with 4 and in tackles with 92. Senior Mike Minnehan had 8 tackles for losses from his rover position and sophomore cornerbacks Steve Glover and Charlie Hampton combined for 5 pickoffs.

Susee earned second-team All-America honors and was a first-team Little all-Northwest pick. He and Minnehan were first-team all-CFA choices, Susee for the third time and unanimously, Minnehan for the second. Hampton and Glover earned second-team and honorable mention status, respectively.

Spearheading the defensive line was first-team Little all-Northwest and unanimous first-team all-CFA junior end Cory Heins, who had 9 sacks and was named National Division II Player of the Week for his performance in Western's triumph over Linfield. Heins also was an NAIA National Scholar-Athlete.

Another stalwart was honorable mention all-league senior tackle Rudy Grandbois, who had 5 sacks.

The linebacking corps was deep, led by sophomore Greg Enell, who got second-team all-CFA honors.

One area of concern prior to the season was the kicking game, but freshman Dan Clemensen hit 7 of 10 field goal tries and 27 of 30 extra points, earning first-team all-league honors.

"I was pleased with the special teams," said Smith. "Clemensen did a nice job. He needs to improve his range, but he was consistent from 40 yards on in."

Smith, who was in his first head coaching job at any level, said he learned a great deal.

"The role I assumed was more of a manager and problem solver than one of on-field coach," Smith said. "I was fortunate to have a quality group of assistants to give responsibility to."

Smith singled out two positive aspects of the success Western achieved.

"A lot of people have now heard about Western football, and most of it has been positive," Smith said. "That helps us in recruiting quality student-athletes.

"What I was most pleased about is the attitude of everyone in the program. The players who had been here four years had been through a lot. They deserved the success they had."

VIKING FEATURE:
TODD PETERSON: FORMER CENTRAL RECEIVER NOW AT WESTERN

by Kevin Jackson, WWU Sports Information Office

When Western wide receiver Todd Peterson steps onto the field at Tomlinson Stadium to play Central Washington University Sept. 29, he will feel more than the intense emotions of the rivalry between the two schools.

Peterson knows those emotions very well.

But this will be the first season that Peterson, a former Wildcat, will experience those feelings as a Viking.

The 6-foot-2, 200-pound senior transferred to Western this year after performing as an all-Columbia Football Association receiver at Central in 1987.

After a two-year absence from football, he said he chose to come to Western because he wanted to get back into college and play at a school that throws the football a lot.

"I really wanted to get back into school and I had the itch to play again. I had to be at an NAIA school, so Western seemed like the ideal place. It's a quality school," he said.

Western head football coach Rob Smith is happy Peterson made that choice. With graduation claiming last year's top wide receiver Mike Carrington, the addition of Peterson is a welcome one.

"He not only brings ability, he brings experience," Smith said.

Despite his success at Central, Peterson said he wasn't happy with his role in the Wildcats' offense.

"I got tired of a run-oriented offense. I got burnt out on school and on football. I just wasn't having fun playing the game."

That unhappiness caused Peterson, a major in health and exercise physiology, to drop out of college and go to work at an aluminum smelter plant in his hometown of Wenatchee. After a year of that type of work, he said he was ready to come back to school and football.

"I knew for sure that wasn't what I wanted to do," he said.

His journey back into the game began when he took a job as head football coach at Entiat High School in 1988.

"I really had fun with that," he said of coaching at the B-8 level school.

"Mentally it has helped me to know what the coaches are talking about and to know how they feel ... It gave me a whole new respect for their job."

After that coaching experience, Peterson got back into playing the game and landed a try-out with the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League in 1989. The receiver went with a friend to a scouting combine in Vancouver, Wash., and was then given a chance as a free agent.

"I hadn't played in a year and a half, but I guess I did all right, because they tried me out as a free agent," he said.

"Nothing came of it, but I'd love to get another shot. I think I have the ability to help someone out after college."

But for now helping out Western is Peterson's priority and the transfer, who played a year at Wenatchee Valley Community College before entering Central as a sophomore in 1986, hopes he can regain the form that made him seventh on the all-time career pass-receiving list at Central.

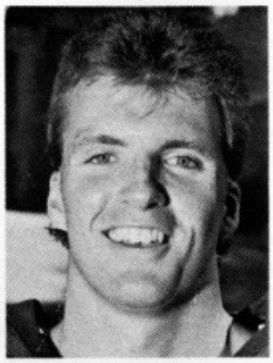

"I hope to play a big part this year. With the offense they run, and that's one of the things that attracted me to Western, there's a lot of passing and they spread things out. I'd like to catch a lot of balls," he said.

A sprinter on a school-record setting 4x100 meter relay team at Wenatchee High School, Peterson has been clocked at 4.58 in the 40 meters, but he said he feels his big 6-foot-2 frame is more important than his speed.

"I think I'm best at being able to make a big catch and take a hit. I do have pretty good size for a receiver and that allows me to go over the middle and do some things that some of the small guys can't do," he said.

Central - 1987

Western - 1990

And Peterson hopes to be doing those things for the Vikings this year, especially Sept. 29.

"I really look forward to playing in Ellensburg. Most of the guys I played with are probably gone now, but I really look forward to it a lot," he said.

The senior said he never really got too involved in the rivalry between the two schools during his two years at Central, but now he will get to see both sides of the feud.

"It allows me to see the rivalry from the other point of view," he said. "Before I wasn't into it so much like a lot of people were. Western was just another opponent for me.

"Some of my old friends back at Central have given me the traitor routine (about transferring to WWU), but I just laugh it off."

Peterson hasn't run into any negative reactions to the move at Western, however.

"The football program here is run, I don't want to say better, but I think that's the word I'm looking for. There's a lot more communication," he said.

"They've made me feel real welcome and real comfortable. I'm still trying to get to know everybody, but the guys are great."

And Peterson has set some pretty lofty goals for those "great guys" to obtain this season.

"I would mainly like to see us go unbeaten and win the league championship," he said.

"To do that we'll have to beat Central at home, which will be tough, but I wouldn't mind having about 200 yards receiving that game."

Games like that are not out of Peterson's reach.

In his first game against eventual national champion Linfield in 1986, the sophomore piled up 195 yards in catches and made an 84-yard touchdown catch that still stands as the CWU record for longest pass play.

"They worked me into that game quite a bit, even though it was my first and we were playing Linfield. I was really surprised," he said.

The following season, Peterson caught 23 passes for 441 yards and 5 touchdowns as Central took the Mount Rainier League championship.

He cited games against Oregon Tech and Pacific Lutheran, both in which he piled up over 100 yards in catches, as his best in that season.

With an average of over 20 yards a catch for the year, Peterson won the all-CFA honor, but he said he doesn't go looking for such awards.

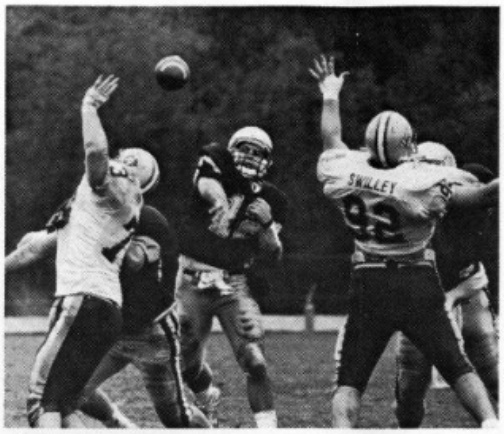

"It's not my priority at all. It's great if it comes and especially if the team is successful."

Peterson hopes he can obtain both personal and team success at Western in 1990.

"Even though I haven't played in awhile, I'm still confident in what I can do."

KEEP YOUR OWN STATISTICS

Every football fan knows that the score doesn't always give a good picture of a game. A few statistics, like those that can be kept on this page, can make the picture clearer, show what the individual stars contribute and help to win post-game "debates." Besides, it can be fun to second guess the official scorer whose statistics will appear in tomorrow's papers. But before you start, here are some pointers on being a statistician:

1. Keep cumulative totals to be informed "up to the minute" and to simplify our figuring of team totals. Example: Jones gains 3, 6, 9, 2 yards and you write 3, 9, 18, 20 on his line.

2. Be satisfied if you come within 10-15 yards of the official team totals. Individual judgments as to the line of scrimmage can make quite a difference in the totals.

3. Remember that it takes 10 yards to make a first down—that last inch can be as important as a yard and must be scored as one. Wait until the official places the ball and then go by the official down/yard marker on the sidelines.

4. Be sure to credit first downs on scoring plays originating from lines of scrimmage beyond the 10-yard line.

5. On plays involving penalties measured from the point of the foul, credit the rusher or pass receiver with yardage only to the point of the infraction.

6. Charge gains and losses on fumbles to the player who, in your judgment, contributed most to the error.

7. Don't score two-point conversion attempts after touchdowns as rushing or passing plays.

ABOUT WASHINGTON

Western Washington University emphasizes excellence in undergraduate education and in selected graduate programs. The University is large enough to offer a wide range of high quality programs and small enough to focus its resources on individual students. Faculty, students, and staff work closely together in a superb setting to pursue a university education and build career skills on a sound foundation of the arts, humanities, sciences and professional studies.

There are extraordinary opportunities available to a Western student: facilities such as the Wilson Library, the marine laboratory, the computer center, and the Performing Arts Center; distinguished programs as wide ranging as vehicle technology, music, environmental studies, journalism, business and education; art and architecture created by such as Noguchi, Caro, Bassetti and Ibsen Nelson. The University occupies a forested hill above Bellingham Bay and the city with views of the San Juan Islands, Mount Baker, and the Canadian and Cascade mountain ranges.

The campus is a stunning blend of art and nature. It has been called "magic." Its visual power signals the power of the educational opportunity offered to Western students. An accomplished faculty makes undergraduate education its primary mission. Western students engage in the great tradition of the arts and sciences, fostering values such as clarity of thought and expression, informed judgment, aesthetic sensibility, tolerance for ambiguity, a sensitivity to cultural differences, and a sense of historical continuity. Upon these values Western students build for the future, choosing from a wide range of professional programs which foster the knowledge and skills demanded by today's careers.

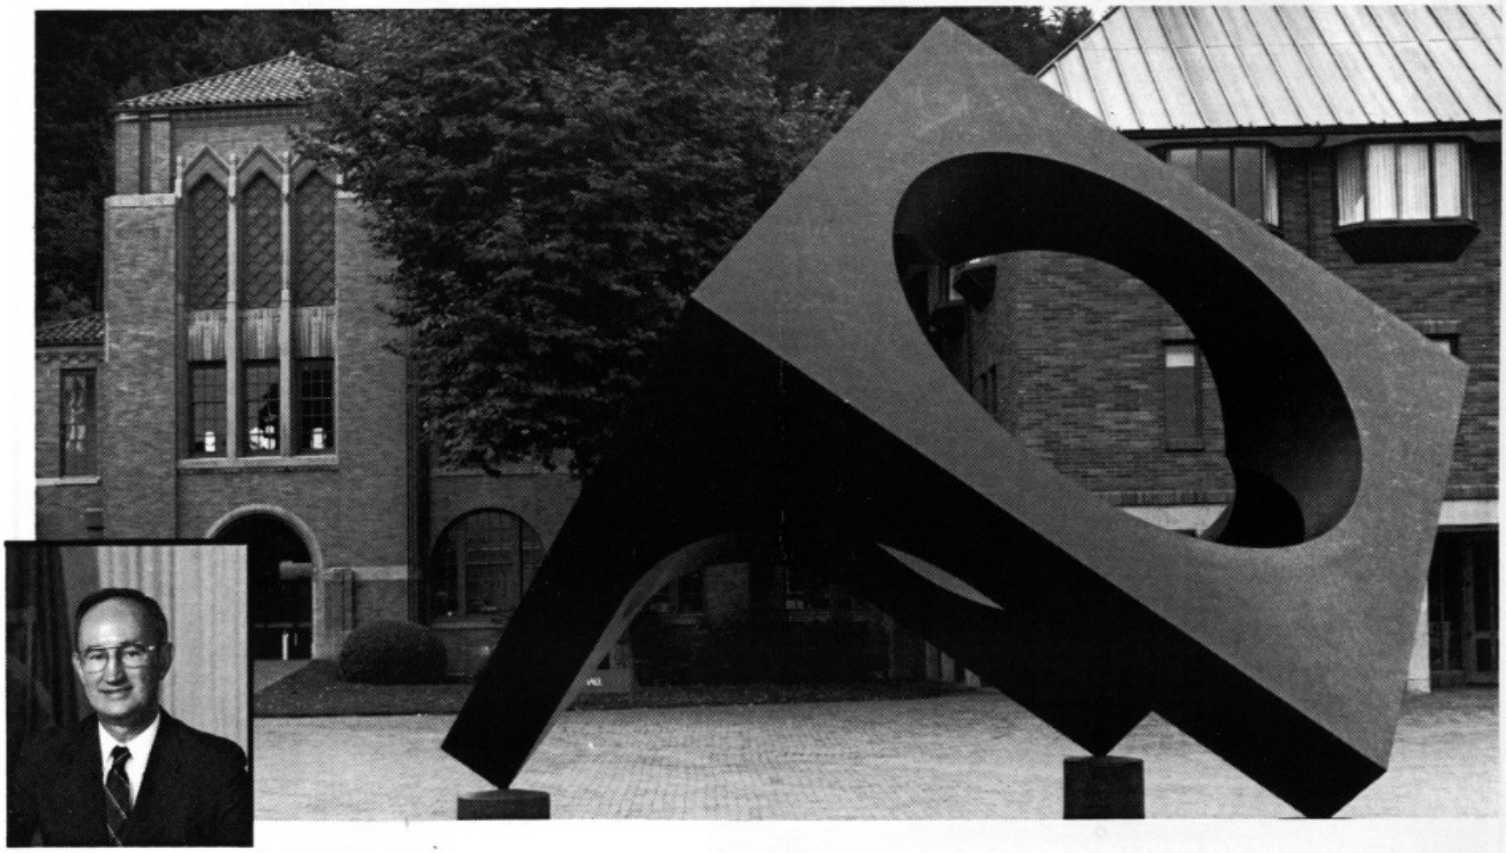

Western reflects the high aspirations of Washington citizens for educational excellence. For students, faculty and staff Western thus embodies an opportunity and a challenge.

Western was founded in 1893 and has grown from a small teacher's college into a multipurpose institution of 9,000 students, offering a wide range of educational opportunities, from studies in the liberal arts and sciences to pre-professional and professional training.

Western offers degree programs through five colleges and two schools. The College of Arts and Sciences, the largest division of the University, offers over 60 major programs in 22 departments. Programs in accounting, business administration, economics, business education and office administration are available through the College of Business and Economics. The Woodring College of Education trains teachers at all levels, from preschool through college. The talents and facilities of the department of art, music and theatre/dance are offered through the College of Fine and Performing Arts. Huxley College of Environmental Studies addresses the biological, social and cultural dimensions of environmental problems on a scale ranging from local to global. Students who wish to take maximum responsibility for the direction and content of their degree programs, share in curriculum planning and engage in a variety of independent studies may be interested in Fairhaven College. Fairhaven students may select a major from another division of Western or design their own Fairhaven concentration. Western's Graduate School offers the Master of Arts, Master of Business Administration, Master of Education, Master of Music and Master of Science degrees in nearly 30 different areas of concentration.

Western is located in Bellingham, a city of 48,000 in the northwest corner of the state near the Canadian border. The 224-acre campus, on the west slope of Sehome Hill, overlooks the downtown area, Bellingham Bay, and the beautiful San Juan Islands. Less than an hour's drive away are the ski slopes of 10,778-foot Mount Baker, numerous lakes, two major rivers, and the alpine country of the North Cascades. Seattle is 90 miles to the south, and Vancouver, British Columbia, is 55 miles to the north.

VIKINGS HOST WHITWORTH IN SEASON OPENER

Coming off their best record since 1951, the Vikings open the 1990 season by hosting Whitworth College in a Columbia Football Association - Mount Rainier League contest.

HISTORY - WESTERN vs. WHITWORTH

Today is the 45th meeting between the two schools. The Pirates lead the all-time series, which began in 1946, 23-21, but Western has won the last three games, including a 24-9 triumph at Spokane in last season's opener.

1989 RECORDS

Western was 7-2, 4-2 in the Mount Rainier League, and was ranked 21st in the final NAIA Division II National Poll.

Whitworth was 3-6, 1-5 in the MRL.

WHITWORTH REPORT

The Pirates return some key offensive personnel from last year's 3-6 squad. Leading the way are a pair of second-team all-CFA picks, guard Bob Carbee and running back Mark Linden.

Carbee, a graduate of Mount Baker High School, is in his fourth year as a starter. Linden is the only active back in the CFA with two 1,000-yard rushing seasons and needs 750 yards this year to become the fourth player in the loop's history to achieve 3,000 in career yardage.

Also back are two other key starters, quarterback Jonn Moomaw and wide receiver Rick Burkhart. Moomaw took every snap for the Pirates last year, throwing for 1,703 yards and 10 touchdowns. Burkhart had 32 catches for 400 yards and 4 touchdowns.

The defense is led by end Scott Lopez, who had a team-high 7 sacks. Lopez made history in last year's meeting when he picked up a loose ball on a Western conversion attempt and ran 87 yards for the CFA's only defensive two-point conversion. Other returning starters include 6-foot-6, 250-pound end Chris Bennett and safeties Brent Busby and Scott Albertson.

WESTERN REPORT

Western enters the 1990 season strong in many areas and ranked 21st in the pre-season NAIA Division II National Poll, but there are some holes to fill.

The Vikings' strongest points are along the lines, particularly on offense. Four offensive line starters return, led by first-team all-CFA center and pre-season NAIA Division II All-American Kevin Beason. Beason, a 285-pound senior, anchors a line that averages 270 pounds. Other returning starters are guards Steve Gatterman and Todd Harleman and tackle Tom Myhre.

The defensive line returns only one starter, but Cory Heins has led Western in sacks three straight years. His nine last season tied him for third in the CFA. Like Beason, Heins was a first-team all-league pick and pre-season NAIA All-American. The rest of the line is young but talented, particularly redshirt freshmen Mike Dunford and John Meagher.

The linebacking corps is also solid. Second-team all-CFA pick Greg Enell and Marty Starkovich are the returning starters, with lettermen Lynton Hyde and John Cowen the top backups.

Other returning starters on defense are cornerback Charlie Hampton, a second-team all-CFA pick, and strong safety Matt Sheffer.

Back on offense, the Vikings are loaded at wide receiver. Starter Ken Corbin, the team's best deep threat, is back, and two top reserves from last year, Tim Carlson and Dimitri Ancira, move into starting roles. Todd Peterson, a second-team all-league pick at Central Washington in 1987, also should contribute.

Holes need to be filled at quarterback, tight end and running back. Matt Sayre, a transfer from Eastern Washington, has won the starting spot at quarterback, looking impressive in training camp, and letter winner Corby Hanson has the inside track for the lone running back spot.

On special teams, Western needs to find kick returners, but the kicking spots are solid. Dan Clemensen, a first-team all-CFA pick, returns as placekicker and is also taking over the punting duties.

NOTES

Carbee is one of two former Whatcom County League players on the Whitworth roster. Punter John Karuza is a graduate of Meridian High. ... Mark Oty, who once attended Western, starts at cornerback today for Whitworth. He is the brother of the Vikings' backup placekicker, Brent Oty. ... Paul Johns, a starting offensive guard for the Pirates, spent 1987 on Western's roster as a linebacker. ... Western has won three of its last four season openers after losing the previous 14. ... If Linden reaches 3,000 yards in career rushing, he'd be putting himself in impressive company. Along with Western's Scott Lohr, the others to reach the mark are Mike Oliphant of Puget Sound, who is now with the Cleveland Browns of the NFL, and Orville Lee of Simon Fraser, who was CFL Rookie of the Year in 1988 and currently plays for the Saskatchewan Roughriders.
