Lutes Must Win

To retain an outside chance for the Evergreen bunting the Pacific Lutheran Gladiators have to come through with a victory tonight. If they win the rest of their games, and Eastern gets dumped somewhere along the line, the race could end in a deadlock.

But the Lute coaches are worried about this tilt. They fear this might be the night the Western Vikings will really explode. They have the same ball club which did so well last season, but they just haven't clicked in conference play. To date the Western record looks like this:

Western 37, Linfield 6.
Western 40, U. of British Columbia 0.
Western 7, Eastern 31.
Western 6, Central 7.
Western 6, Whitworth 12.

Central came from behind in the closing minutes to win. And the Lutherans managed to squeeze by Central 7 to 0. Tonight's battle will be close, and the Gladiators are in for a full evening.

Coach Charles Lappenbusch's Vikings are the oldest rival on the Lute schedule. They have played the Lutes since the early '30's. During those years the games have always been close as the next minute. Lappy's boys are always up for their games with the Gladiators.

Vikings Seeking Victory

The victory-starved Western Vikings come to town tonight all fired up to dump the Lutherans. They have yet to win a conference tussle in three starts.

Potentially, the Vikings have one of the best clubs in the Evergreen loop. They have practically the same team which won five and lost four last year, and held all opponents to 28 points. Tonight may be the night when they get rolling.

Coach Charles Lappenbusch and his assistant, Ray Ciszek, have a big, rugged club. Their offensive line averages 205 from end to end, and their defensive line is bigger yet.

In Truman Fones, Wally Clayton and Hal Partlow, Western has three of the better ends in the loop. They are stronger than the ends any Lute opponent has shown this fall.

Jack Frazier at center ranks next to Herm Pein of Eastern. Frazier received all-conference recognition last season.

MEL LINDBLOOM

The Western style of football on offense employs the Notre Dame box and also the single wing. This gives them a lot of power and deception. They will be hard to stop.

Several of the Lutes and Vikings played with or against one another in their prep days. McKanna of PLC and Jerry Karnofski and Tom Poe of Western were in the same backfield at Longview. Tommy Taylor of Western played with the nine Ballard boys on the Lute team. When Ballard and Broadway (both Seattle) played for the city championship one year, PLC's Guyot and Gorud intercepted passes from Western's Lee Stout and ran for touchdowns to give Ballard the title.

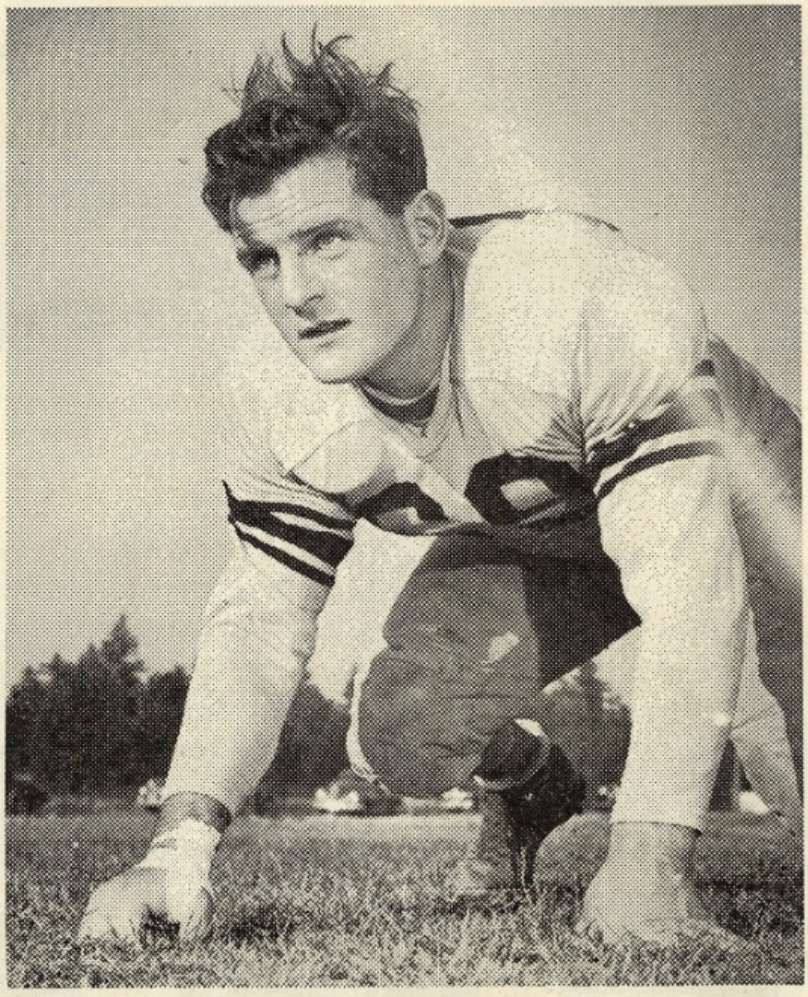

Lutes Passing Game Clicking

The days of the aerial circus are returning to Pacific Lutheran. Last week against Eastern the Glads tossed 28 passes and completed 13 to bring their season's average to 46 completions in 99 attempts, in five games.

Lute coaches, Marv Tommervik and Marv Harshman, were the key men in the great aerial circus which brought fame to PLC from '39 to '41. Tommy did the passing and Harsh gathered 'em in. Now they are developing a quartet of capable flingers in Gene Strandness, John Jurkovich, Wayne Brock and Lowell Knutson.

Ranking sixth among the nation's small colleges in passing offense, the Lutes have gained 784 yards and five touchdowns via the air lanes.

Tonight the Lutherans face another tough line. They will no doubt take to passing again, and will fill the air with the pigskin.

JACK CARBONE

Kudos must also go to the Gladiators line for its stellar defensive play in every game. Only one touchdown has been tallied through that stubborn forward wall.

Jack Carbone, junior guard, is one of the outstanding men in the line. His steady play makes him a candidate for all conference honors. The wingmen have played excellent ball in preventing opposing backs from sweeping their ends. Vern Morris, who is also a capable pass receiver, is the top end on the team. Bob Dinsmore and Hal Schrupp play tough, rugged ball at end.

The steady play of Steinar Gorud at center helps the Lutes, and Bud Hatley and Jack Proud play consistently well at the tackle berths. Roy Hagen and Rick Daniels, a pair of tough guards, round out the first line of defense.

Injuries to several key men will hamper the Lute reserve strength tonight. Those who will miss the contest include Bob Andrew, first string end; Doane Blair, left half; Norm Sturm, fullback; John Waldorf, guard; and Ben Hanson, end. To fill in the gap at fullback, Bob Brass has been shifted from quarterback. If necessary, John Jurkovich can also run from the plunging spot.

These two pigskin tossers are an integral part of the Lute aerial circus. Wayne Brock, on the left, plays left half. He is from Puyallup and is a transfer from W.S.C. Lowell Knutson (above) is a soph from Seattle, where he was a star for Queen Anne high. He tosses the ball from the port side. Last week against Eastern he hit Hal Schrupp in the end zone for a score.

LUTE WINGMEN—These three lads bear the brunt of the end chores for the Gladiators. Vern Morris, a sophomore transfer from the U. of Washington, hails from Tacoma and played at Bellarmine high. He is a powerful defensive man, and his pass snagging ability has netted two touchdowns. Bob Dinsmore is the starting left end, and is a soph from Eatonville. He has done well, filling in for the injured Bob Andrew. Hal Schrupp, a soph from Seattle, where he played for Ballard high, plays either end. He is small for an end, but is plenty tough on defense and is a good pass receiver.

This husky lad is Rick Daniels, 195-pound sophomore guard. Daniels played for Lincoln high in Tacoma, and his home is in Parkland. He won his letter as a frosh last season, and this fall he started the first four games. He's a rugged boy in there, but just wait until he grows up—he's only 18.

Southern Oregon Next

The Red Raiders from Southern Oregon College of Education are the opposition for the Lutes' next home game on Saturday evening, November 13. Pacific Northwest grid fans are still talking about the ding dong battle these two teams put on last Thanksgiving Day in the Medford, Oregon Pear Bowl. Trailing 14 to 0 after eight minutes of play the Gladiators roared back to capture a thrilling 27 to 21 victory.

This year's meeting between the two clubs should be another thriller. SOCE has practically the same team back with the exception of D'Autremant, their speedy left half.

The pigskin Pete contest finals will also be held in the Stadium that evening. The competition will start at 7:00 p.m. and will be completed during the half-time intermission. This contest has been held on all playfields in Tacoma and vicinity during the fall under the sponsorship of the Puget Sound Auto Electric Co. and the Tacoma News-Tribune.

This is Frank Gayda, Western's ace right halfback. He hails from Hoquiam, weighs 203, and stands 6-foot, 1-inch. In addition to his football prowess, he is an outstanding track man.
