Western Washington vs. Willamette University

These two solid Willamette tackles will be in the starting lineup tonight. They are Jim Robinson (left) at 208 and Don Green, a freshman, at 230.

Willamette Is Short On Seasoning

The Bearcats showed last week that while they have a talented group of freshmen and veterans, they are shy on experience.

They lost some important men from last year's squad and they are still trying to find replacements. This afternoon's game will tell more about whether they have.

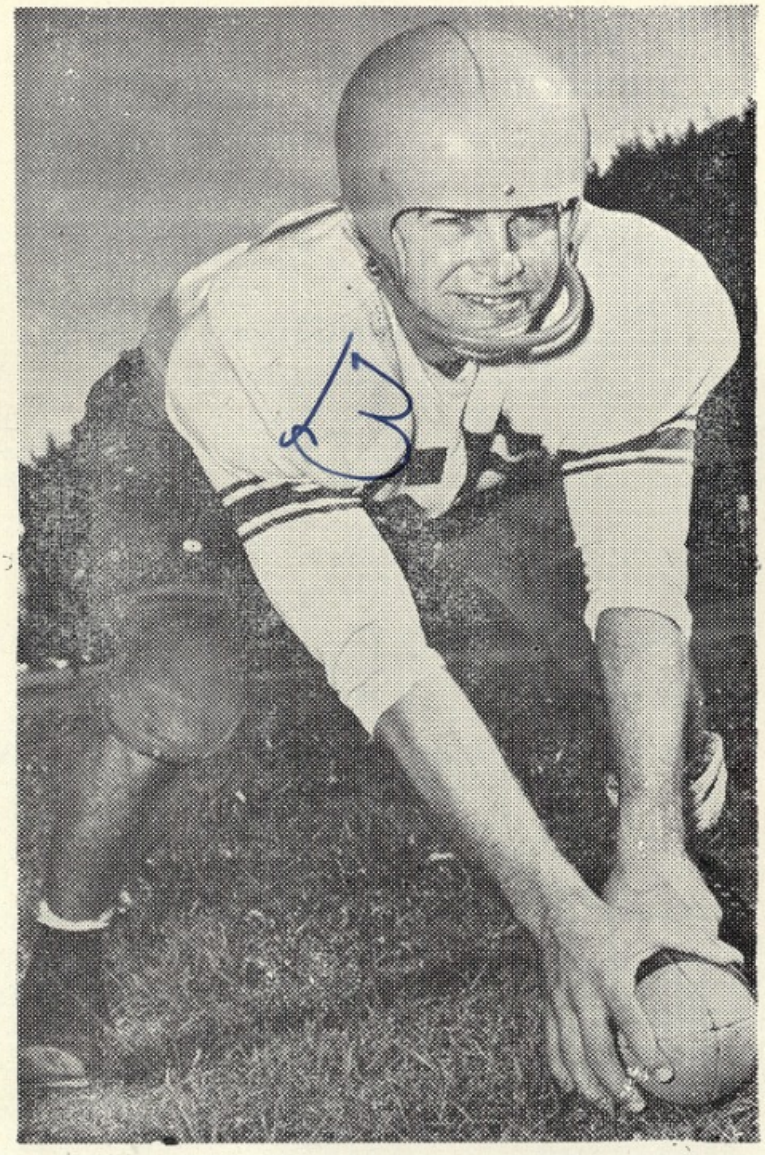

Usually long on defense, the 'Cats let Whitworth runners chalk up 159 yards and their passers 141 yards in going down to defeat 19-0. The Jasons could only muster 28 yards on the ground and 70 through the air.

After the game last week, Coach Ted Ogdahl found he might have to get along without two key players for a week or so. All-Conference defensive tackle Howard Stroebel came up with a bruised hip. All-Conference safety Denny Sarver has a shoulder separation.

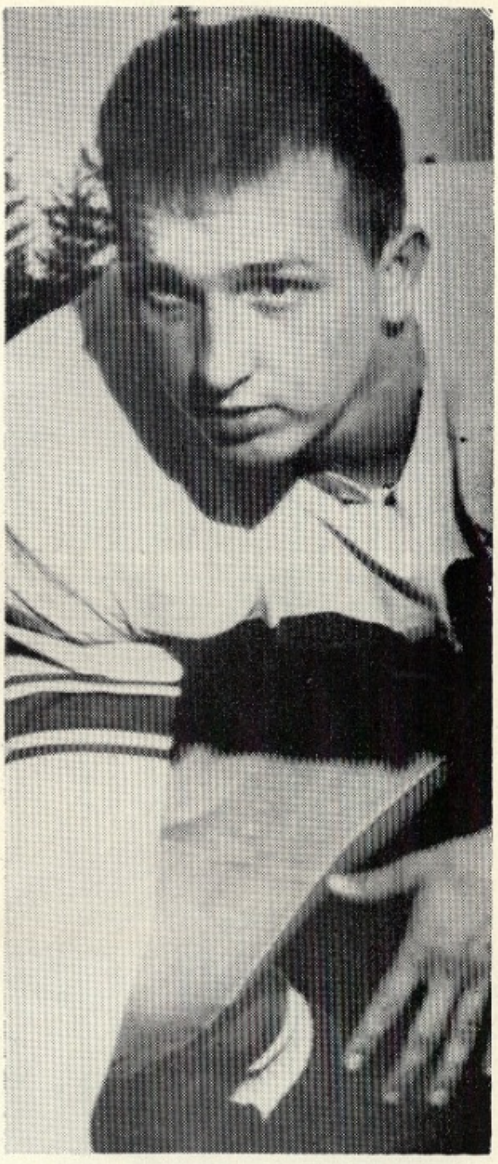

But the Bearcats, if last weeks drills are any indication, are determined to get back on the winning trail. Stan Solomon, who averaged 6.5 yards per carry last season, will be in the backfield along with hard-charging fullback Larry Miller and scatback Jack Berkey. Keith Burres, a sophomore, is learning his job and is a constant passing threat.

And the freshmen, the big question mark, are beginning to perform like old-timers. Ogdahl will probably have two in the starting line-up this afternoon. They are 230-pound tackle Don Green and 185-pound guard Jim Hughes. Freshman quarterback Tommy Lee will set a lot of action as well as tough first-year center Bill Hartman at 210.

Veterans in line at the kick-off will probably be ends Bill Wall and Terry Kent, tackle Jim Robinson, center John Hinds and guard Marv Cisneros.

Jack Sim, one of the top performers on the Western Washington squad, will occupy the pivot spot for the invaders.

Ned Olson, 200-pound left tackle, who will start tonight for John Kulbitski's Vikings.

Western Washington Features Multiple Offense

Western Washington, Evergreen Conference co-champion last year with Central Washington, features a multiple offense and relies heavily on a passing attack. Coach John Kulbitski has three fine quarterbacks, all newcomers, to engineer his aerial game. They are Doug Ringenbach, Norm Felix and Steve Hansen.

Western can operate from six or seven formations from their multiple attack, but probably will concentrate on straight-T and double wing T this week. They use a single wing for a straight-away power.

The co-champion Vikings are plentifully supplied with veterans, with the exception of quarterback. They can open with experienced men at every position, though one or two promising freshmen may have a crack at starting.

The Vikings put top priority on defense and can field a big defensive platoon. Kulbitski can plug the middle of the defensive line with a couple of 230-pounders, Leland Wolf and Fred West.

Among reserve backs who have been showing up well in early Western drills are Jim McCuen, 200-pound freshman fullback from Tacoma; Jerry Joyce, a 9.9 sprinter from the track squad and Tom Davis, regional NAIA hurdles who recently joined the squad.

Western is untested so far this year but last year they beat the same Whitworth team 21-6 that Willamette had, in the season's opener, downed 41-6.
