Some New Faces

PSC

Vision of Portland State becoming one of the nation's leading urban colleges comes two steps nearer reality this fall with the opening of the $3.5 million Health and Physical Education Building (above) and the $2.7 million first unit of a major science complex (extreme right). Two more structures are now under construction. These include the $2.9 million Library West (architect's sketch, right), and the $2 million classroom and office addition to South Park Hall. The Library is the first unit in an eventual square-block, 11-story building. Portland State's campus will one day cover a 25 block area adjacent to the downtown Portland business district and will support 20,000 students.

VIK CO-CAPTAINS

Roy Malensky (left) and Larry Adamson (right are Viking co-captains for the second year. Malensky, a three-year letterman from Jesuit High, is an outstanding offensive guard. Adamson, a two-year letterman from Estacada, ranks as one of the most complete players ever to put on the pads at Portland State. He's an offensive guard and a linebacker on defense.

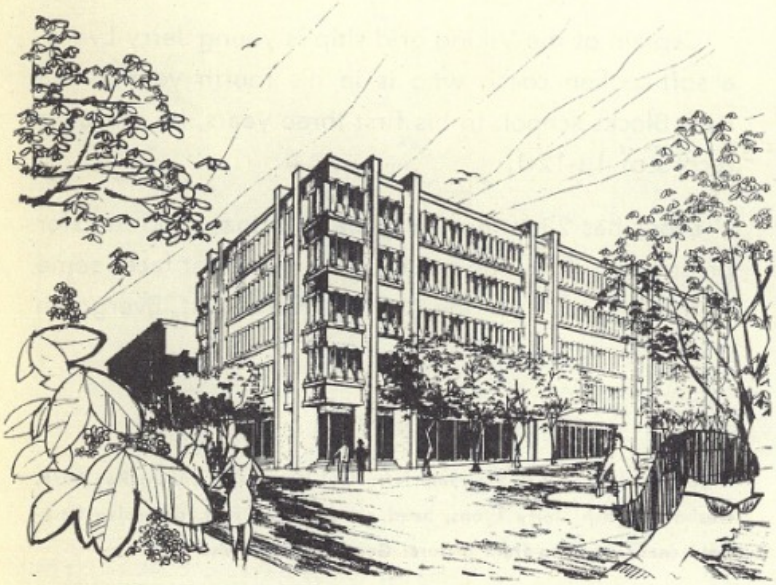

ASSISTANT COACHES' CLUB

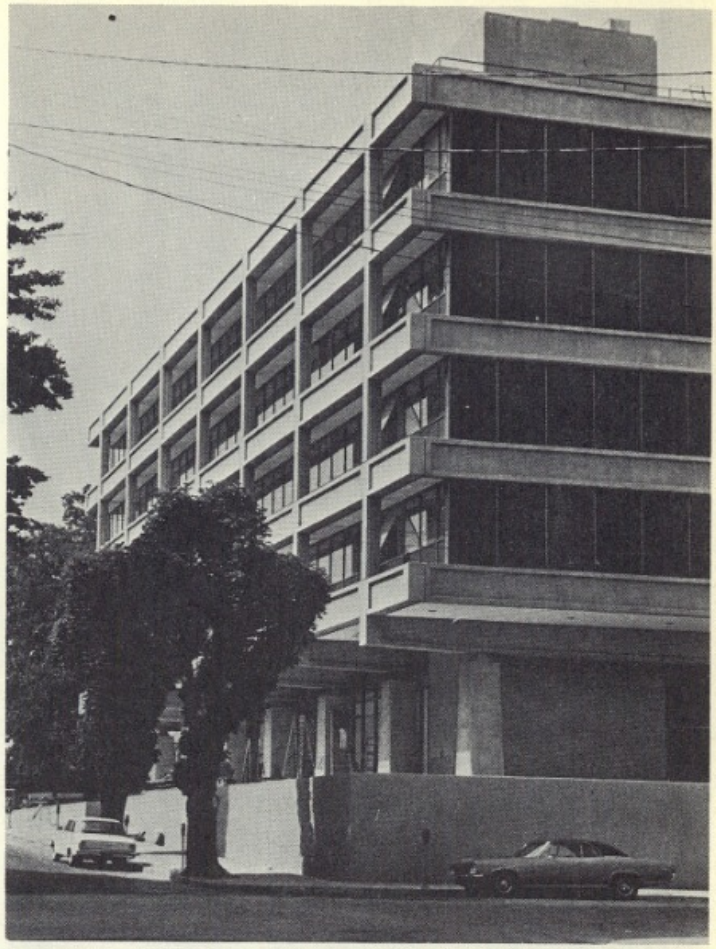

In recent months, a number of businesses and individuals have expressed their interest and confidence in the athletic future of Portland State College by joining the college's "Assistant Coaches' Club." This club was organized for the purpose of raising funds to provide grants-in-aid for deserving student athletes. Its numbers are growing. If you and/or your firm would like more information about this program, write to the Director of Athletics, Portland State College, Box 751, Portland, Oregon 97207, or call 226-7271, extension 1267. VIKS UPWARD BOUND

The current campaign marks the 20th year of football at Portland State, including the years when the Vikings played under the Vanport banner. And 1966 is the second year of PSC's NCAA independent status. The school withdrew from the Oregon Collegiate Conference in 1965 to make possible an orderly move to a more prominent place in the collegiate football sun.

Captain of the Viking grid ship is young Jerry Lyons, a soft-spoken coach who is in his fourth year at the Park Blocks school. In his first three years, he ran up a record of 13-12-1.

Lyons has 23 lettermen and a half-dozen top transfer prospects to form the nucleus of a team that faces some of the best teams in the Big Sky, Northwest, Evergreen and OCC.

MAKE THANKSGIVING PLANS NOW

. . . And be sure to include the second annual Cranberry Bowl game in Multnomah Stadium. This year, the Vikings play host to the colorful Idaho State Bengals.

The game is scheduled to start at 12 noon, so there will be plenty of time for church services in the morning and a big family gathering around the turkey afterwards.

The Cranberry Bowl is also Homecoming 1966 at Portland State, making it a doubly festive weekend.

Ticket reservations are now being accepted at the PSC athletic office. They also will go on sale the week of the game at locations throughout the city.
