ABOUT WESTERN

Western Washington University emphasizes excellence in undergraduate education and in selected graduate programs. The University is large enough to offer a wide range of high quality programs and small enough to focus its resources on individual students. Faculty, students, and staff work closely together in a superb setting to pursue a university education and build career skills on a sound foundation of the arts, humanities, sciences and professional studies.

There are extraordinary opportunities available to a Western student: facilities such as the Wilson Library, the marine laboratory, the computer center, and the Performing Arts Center; distinguished programs as wide ranging as vehicle technology, music, environmental studies, journalism, business and education; art and architecture created by such as Noguchi, Caro, Bassetti and Ibsen Nelson. The University occupies a forested hill above Bellingham Bay and the city with views of the San Juan Islands, Mount Baker, and the Canadian and Cascade mountain ranges.

The campus is a stunning blend of art and nature. It has been called "magic." Its visual power signals the power of the educational opportunity offered to Western students. An accomplished faculty makes undergraduate education its primary mission. Western students engage in the great tradition of the arts and sciences, fostering values such as clarity of thought and expression, informed judgment, aesthetic sensibility, tolerance for ambiguity, a sensitivity to cultural differences, and a sense of historical continuity. Upon these values Western students build for the future, choosing from a wide range of professional programs which foster the knowledge and skills demanded by today's careers.

Western reflects the high aspirations of Washington citizens for educational excellence. For students, faculty and staff Western thus embodies an opportunity and a challenge.

Old Main

WWU President Kenneth P. Mortimer

Western was founded in 1893 and has grown from a small teacher's college into a multipurpose institution of 9,000 students, offering a wide range of educational opportunities, from studies in the liberal arts and sciences to pre-professional and professional training.

Western offers degree programs through five colleges and two schools. The College of Arts and Sciences, the largest division of the University, offers over 60 major programs in 22 departments. Programs in accounting, business administration, economics, business education and office administration are available through the College of Business and Economics. The School of Education trains teachers at all levels, from preschool through college. The talents and facilities of the department of art, music and theatre/dance are offered through the College of Fine and Performing Arts. Huxley College of Environmental Studies addresses the biological, social and cultural dimensions of environmental problems on a scale ranging from local to global. Students who wish to take maximum responsibility for the direction and content of their degree programs, share in curriculum planning and engage in a variety of independent studies may be interested in Fairhaven College. Fairhaven students may select a major from another division of Western or design their own Fairhaven concentration. Western's Graduate School offers the Master of Arts, Master of Business Administration, Master of Education, Master of Music and Master of Science degrees in nearly 30 different areas of concentration.

Western is located in Bellingham, a city of 48,000 in the northwest corner of the state near the Canadian border. The 224-acre campus, on the west slope of Sehome Hill, overlooks the downtown area, Bellingham Bay, and the beautiful San Juan Islands. Less than an hour's drive away are the ski slopes of 10,778-foot Mount Baker, numerous lakes, two major rivers, and the alpine country of the North Cascades. Seattle is 90 miles to the south, and Vancouver, British Columbia, is 55 miles to the north.

We have the muscle to keep Washington in the game.

No one supports Washington's affair with sports like U.S. Bank.

We know that for thousands of men and women all over the state, athletic competition is more than part of their weekend TV schedule. It's a big part of their life.

A part that's important enough to keep them coming back, year after year, to dozens of sports events through the state.

That's why we keep coming back too, every year, to lend our backing to these popular events.

To us, they're more than just another community service. They're vital to the active involved way of life that helps Washington keep its best foot forward.

FOUR ADDED TO WWU HALL OF FAME

Willis Ball

Everett "Tye" Tiland

Pat Locker

Charmon Odle

Four former Western Washington University athletes have been selected as the 14th class of inductees into the Viking Hall of Fame. They are Willis Ball (1953-56), Pat Locker (1976-79) and Everett "Tye" Tiland (1947-50), all of whom played football, and women's basketball player Charmon Odle (1974-77).

Today, the foursome was recognized at a brunch at the home of WWU President Kenneth Mortimer and will be introduced at halftime. The formal induction takes place following the game in the Hall of Fame Room at the Viking Commons Dining Hall on campus.

Since the WWU Athletic Hall of Fame was established in 1968, a total of 55 athletes, coaches and athletic administrators have been honored for bringing recognition to their alma mater.

Willis Ball earned honorable mention Associated Press Little All-America honors in 1955 as a defensive tackle. The first black graduate of Western in 1956, Ball also received honorable mention United Press International All-Coast and All-Evergreen Conference honors in 1953.

A football co-captain in 1954 and 1955, Ball was a finalist for Whatcom County Sports Man of the Year honors in 1954.

Ball died on April 9, 1987, shortly after his retirement from the Seattle Department of Parks and Recreation.

Pat Locker is the only player in Northwest collegiate football history to reach the 4,000 yard mark in career rushing, finishing with 4,049.

Picked to three All-America teams and named the college offensive player of the year for the state of Washington in 1979, Locker set 12 school records, including most yards rushing in a game (225) and season (1,340). The Ferndale High School graduate ran for 100 or more yards in a game 21 times during his career.

Twice Whatcom County Sports Personality of the Year and WWU Athlete of the Year, Locker was a four-time Little All-Northwest, NAIA District 1 all-star and All-Evergreen Conference selection. His jersey, No.24, was retired by the Western Athletic Department.

Charmon Odle was the first woman selected Western Athlete of the Year, being accorded that honor in 1976. Also the first Viking women's player to score 1,000 career points, she still ranks among WWU's top 10 in points (1,038) and is the school's career leader in steals (273).

Odle, who was named to area and regional all-tournament teams in 1976, held 11 school records when she graduated.

Everett "Tye" Tiland was a second-team AP Little All-America pick as a middle linebacker in 1950, helping then Coach Charles Lappenbusch's Vikings to a 7-2-1 record. He was a two-time All-Evergreen Conference choice.

Also a two-year letter winner in baseball as a third baseman, Tiland graduated from Arlington High School. He coached and taught for 31 years, 26 at Anacortes High School, before retiring in 1984.

WESTERN HOSTS WESTERN OREGON IN HOME OPENER

The Western Vikings are looking to post their second win of the season as they host Western Oregon State College in a Columbia Football Association contest. Last week the Vikings (1-0-0 overall and Mount Rainier League) defeated Whitworth, 24-9.

Western Oregon (0-1-0 overall and Mount Hood League) was defeated by Lewis & Clark, 63-33, in the highest scoring game in CFA history.

HISTORY - VIKINGS VS. WOLVES

Western Oregon leads the series, which dates back to 1935, 13-11. WWU has won the last two meetings, breaking a string of six straight wins by WOSC.

Last year, the Vikings defeated the Wolves, 22-17, at Monmouth, Ore., as Peter LaBarge kicked three field goals.

1988 RECORDS

Western Washington was 5-4, 3-3 in the Mount Rainier League. Western Oregon was 3-6, 3-3 in the Mount Hood League.

WESTERN OREGON UPDATE

The Wolves' game last week with Lewis & Clark rewrote the CFA record book. The two teams combined for 96 points and 1,298 yards of offense. Lewis & Clark had 795 yards in total offense, with quarterback Mike Fanger throwing for 443 yards and five touchdowns. Pioneers' running back Dan Ruhl tied CFA records with four rushing touchdowns and five total TDs.

Western Oregon also rolled up impressive offensive numbers. Setting the pace were two players in their first game as Wolves.

Running back Bobby Pope, a transfer from Chabot CC, rushed for 138 yards. Pope, who has 4.4 speed, began his college career at Wyoming.

Quarterback Kevin Smith, who played one game for WWU in 1987, came off the bench to throw for two touchdowns and run for a third. That performance earned him a starting spot for today's game.

Leading WOSC's defense is cornerback Doug Victor, a three-year starter. Victor was in on 14 tackles last week.

The Wolves' head coach is John Vogt. Vogt is in his second year at Western Oregon. He spent the previous two years as a defensive line coach at San Jose State.

WESTERN WASHINGTON UPDATE

Western got its spread offense into gear in the second half against Whitworth, racking up three touchdowns and 270 yards. Tailback Scott Lohr finished the game with 130 yards and a touchdown. It was the 10th time Lohr has reached the 100-yard plateau, and the score was his 25th career touchdown. Lohr needs two more touchdowns to tie Pat Locker's school record of 27 career TDs.

Quarterback Kirk Kriskovich passed for 238 yards and two touchdowns in his first action after sitting out the last two seasons.

The defensive unit was also strong, holding the Pirates to 192 total yards and 10 first downs. Whitworth had only two first downs in the second half. Safety Kelly Susee was in on 11 tackles, seven unassisted, and cornerback Steve Glover intercepted two passes.

The Vikings also filled the shoes of NAIA All-America punter and all-league placekicker Peter LaBarge, although it took three players to do it. Susee averaged 41.0 yards per punt, Dan Clemensen made field goals of 26 and 39 yards and Shane Volkmann boomed four of his six kickoffs into the end zone.

Last week's triumph marked the debut of Western head coach Rob Smith. Smith, a 1981 graduate of the University of Washington, is the first Don James-coached Husky player to become a college head coach.

WESTERN FEATURE:
SOLAR-POWERED CAR GAINS NATIONAL ATTENTION

By Rob Martin

Think of the automobile industry and places like Detroit and Japan may come to mind, but not Western Washington University. Professor Mike Seal of Western's Vehicle Research Institute plans to change those conceptions, and hopes to bring the institute world-wide recognition through a number of different projects.

Starting next summer, Western's sunraycer team will be cruising down a stretch of road in its solar-powered vehicle, somewhere between Disney World and Detroit.

Western is the only university in the Pacific Northwest and one of only 32 schools in the nation competing in General Motors' Sunrayce USA, a nine-day competition which begins July 8.

The solar saga began a year ago, in December, 1988, when GM invited more than 1,200 colleges, universities, trade schools and other educational institutions in North America to submit solar-car proposals.

About 60 schools responded to the selection committee and 32 were chosen.

"Those that evaluated the proposals told me that ours was one of the top proposals received, which was nice to know," Seal said.

"Developing the solar car and racing it in the competition is going to be a high-budget operation, but I think we have what it takes to win nationally; in fact internationally."

Not only is technical expertise required to win the GM race, but funding is even more essential. Seal estimates Western's team needs about $137,000 to compete with its best effort.

"We have about $9,000 so far, but it's going to take a lot more . . . We've got to go out and shake some more loose," said Seal.

The Boeing Company and the State Legislature are two alternatives, but Western's solar car team is exploring all possible fundraising resources.

"We are trying every likely source to help raise enough money, but Boeing may be good for a large chunk of that," Seal said, adding, "If we get all the money and it comes early enough to use it wisely, we have a good chance to win."

Winning would provide the institute a chance to establish a name for itself throughout the world.

"If we can finish in the top three, we would then go on to the World Championships in Australia at GM's expense," Seal said. "I really think the whole university would benefit from a top-three performance, because we'll get a reputation for doing things nationally and internationally."

Seal believes the design is perhaps the one thing giving Western's car the competitive edge. The car will carry two passengers, allowing - by contest rules - 50 percent more solar cells.

"Having two passengers does add to the weight of the vehicle somewhat," said Seal. "We have run some calculations and have determined that it will cost us about 6 percent in terms of frictional drag but will give 50 percent more power, which is a good trade-off. So far as we can tell at this time, we are the only school that has taken this option."

The design of Western's entry will be different in other ways as well.

The two occupants will be seated at either end of the vehicle faced in opposite directions. This is so that the car can drive in either direction and accommodate the changing position of the sun during the day.

Because the car can be driven from either end, it's capable of crabbing (rolling sideways) down the road, allowing it to use wind power as well.

"I talked to Paul Macready who designed the GM Sun Raycer and he thought it was a very clever idea and he thought it would win," Seal said.

The Vehicle Research Institute is a non-profit research organization that began operation in 1969. The VRI is the builder of the award-winning Viking series of experimental cars which featured fuel economy, performance, safety and emission control.

The Viking Four experimental car achieved 166 mph with a Mazda rotary engine at the Bonneville Salt Flats. When the same car was fitted with a 4-cylinder turbocharged diesel engine, it was able to average 87.5 mpg for 4,000 miles cross-country during the 1980 Sea to Sea Econorally, while consuming only $46 worth of fuel.

Viking Four wasn't the only series car to achieve success, however. The Viking six safety car, built for the Department of Transportation, passed a 41 mph barrier crash test and gets 110 mpg at 50 mph, while still meeting the 1988 emission standards.

Through the success of these different programs, VRI has begun to establish a name for itself within the vehicle research and development field. Seal believes that with this recognition will come more projects for the automobile manufacturers.

"We are getting more and more work from the big automobile companies . . . we get more than MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology)," Seal said.

Recently, Western's VRI completed the prototype engine for Subaru. The 4-valve prototype was placed in a Subaru Legacy that set nine world endurance records, while averaging 150 mpg for 100,000 km.

With its success, Western's VRI has attracted some major automobile manufacturers like Chrysler Corp., Subaru, Ford Motor Company, Nissan Corp., Mazda and Toyota of Canada. Other clients include the U.S. Department of Transportation, Pacific Northwest Bell, Washington State Department of Highways, Western Aluminum Producers, Alcoa Aluminum, CNG Fuel Systems, NASA Lewis Research Center and the Department of Energy.

KEEP YOUR OWN STATISTICS

Every football fan knows that the score doesn't always give a good picture of a game. A few statistics, like those that can be kept on this page, can make the picture clearer, show what the individual stars contribute and help to win post-game "debates." Besides, it can be fun to second guess the official scorer whose statistics will appear in tomorrow's papers. But before you start, here are some pointers on being a statistician:

1. Keep cumulative totals to be informed "up to the minute" and to simplify our figuring of team totals. Example: Jones gains 3, 6, 9, 2 yards and you write 3, 9, 18, 20 on his line.

2. Be satisfied if you come within 10-15 yards of the official team totals. Individual judgments as to the line of scrimmage can make quite a difference in the totals.

3. Remember that it takes 10 yards to make a first down—that last inch can be as important as a yard and must be scored as one. Wait until the official places the ball and then go by the official down/yard marker on the sidelines.

4. Be sure to credit first downs on scoring plays originating from lines of scrimmage beyond the 10-yard line.

5. On plays involving penalties measured from the point of the foul, credit the rusher or pass receiver with yardage only to the point of the infraction.

6. Charge gains and losses on fumbles to the player who, in your judgment, contributed most to the error.

7. Don't score two-point conversion attempts after touchdowns as rushing or passing plays.

Georgia-Pacific invests in people.

Georgia-Pacific believes that an investment in technology is an investment in people. It's the only way to remain competitive in the rapidly changing forest products industry.

We've added computer technology to all of our paper and wood products mills. Computers now scan logs to determine the most efficient cuts and uses.

Our computers also identify mechanical and electrical malfunctions and show how to fix them. These kinds of innovations have greatly improved speed, accuracy and productivity.

By investing in tomorrow today, we protect our future. And the future of our employees.
